

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sentence Construction: Say It! Write It! Repeat It!

A proposition is a sentence that states that a subject is connected to a predicate, it affirms or denies the truth of a statement.

God is good.

This is easy.

I am here.

You are there.

He is smart.

She is fast.

It was fun.

We are next.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sentence Construction: Say It! Write It! Repeat It!

A proposition is a sentence that states that a subject is connected to a predicate, it affirms or denies the truth of a statement.

You are many.

They are happy.

Ann is here.

Ann is tall.

Bob is not here.

Bob is taller.

I am hot.

You are funny.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sentence Construction: Say It! Write It! Repeat It!

A proposition is a sentence that states that a subject is connected to a predicate, it affirms or denies the truth of a statement.

He is here.

She is there.

It is where?

We are cold.

You all are nice.

They are smart.

This is easy.

These are sentences.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sentence Construction: Say It! Write It! Repeat It!

A proposition is a sentence that states that a subject is connected to a predicate, it affirms or denies the truth of a statement.

I was not hot.

You were not funny.

He was not here.

She was not there.

We are not cold.

You all are not close.

They are not present.

Anne is pretty.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sentence Construction: Say It! Write It! Repeat It!

A proposition is a sentence that states that a subject is connected to a predicate, it affirms or denies the truth of a statement.

Bob is smart.

My cat is fast.

Your dog is strong.

His egg is cold.

Her name is Anne.

Its color is blue.

Our fan is off.

Your toys are stacked.